This means that users can simply download, open, and run the app on their preferred platform. Having reviewed more than a dozen different apps similar to the one that we are reviewing here, we think that Bootable USB Creator is a neat, convenient and efficient app to create and bootable USB flash drive from a Mac, using the included OS X application. Simple drive selection and source image input, make for a snappy and efficient handling. Having deployed the app, all that users need to do in order to initiate the bootable media creation is to choose the target drive, as well as the preferred OS image. We believe that this process is simple and intuitive, especially since the app does feature an automatic drive detection feature. Furthermore, several master boot codes can also be selected from the included drop-down menu, this way ensuring that all the required parameters can be set from within a single interface, without the need to access other menus. Choose to have the previously stored data erased, preview the processing progress, or update the MBR. Aside from choosing the drive and ISO image, one will also have access to three additional options, which allow for a bit of flexibility with regard to the bootable drive creation. Consequently, users can choose for the data which was previously stored on the device, to be erased. Furthermore, the MBR can be updated during the process, and, if required, one can also choose the app to display the processing progress. Handy media creation tool, which will allow you to
