About AutoCAD AutoCAD has become the industry standard for desktop CAD and drafting, with more than 100,000,000 licenses sold in 2009. It is used by architects, engineers, students, small businesses, and large manufacturers. AutoCAD is available as an individual app or as part of the AutoCAD LT software package, which is designed for users of minicomputers (with preinstalled AutoCAD and plotter software) who cannot use a higher-cost version of AutoCAD. AutoCAD LT supports single and multiple-user systems and costs about US$200. AutoCAD is available in numerous languages including English, Japanese, Chinese, Korean, German, French, Russian, and Spanish. More than 40 languages can be purchased. AutoCAD, combined with AutoCAD LT and the software that runs the plotter, can be used to create technical drawings, architectural plans, and various types of documentation, such as reports, specifications, and production charts. AutoCAD uses a 2D base system and does not directly import 3D objects. To create 3D models, you must import or convert them from other CAD or graphics software packages. AutoCAD is a one-person operation and may be used for business and personal purposes. Autodesk started out by making only AutoCAD. This eventually expanded to include AutoCAD LT, the line of desktop apps with different functionality, and AutoCAD Online, which makes it possible to create documents from a Web browser, with or without AutoCAD installed. AutoCAD is available on nearly all platforms, including Windows (including Windows Vista and later), macOS, and Linux (including both x86 and x86-64). (Windows and macOS are only discussed in this section.) AutoCAD is a technical drawing and drafting application. I found a way to sort an array in the order of its indexes, but i don't know how to get the indexes of the array. A: Use the sorting methods in NSArray. NSArray *sortedArray = [unsortedArray sortedArrayUsingSelector:@selector(caseInsensitiveCompare:)]; A: I found this example: NSSortDescriptor *sortDescriptor = [[NSSortDescriptor alloc] initWithKey:@"name" ascending:YES]; [arrayOfPeople sortUsingDescriptors:[NSArray arrayWithObject:sortDescriptor]]; A: Thanks for the replies. At the moment i'm gonna use: [array sortUsingComparator:^(id a, id b) { return [a compare:b options:NSNumericSearch]; }]; and it's working!
